Disclaimers

- Please excuse my s*y photography skills
- Feel free to ask questions/comment at any point
 - Especially any figure you see in my panel as BG
- I have handouts & business cards with my contact info.
 - Blog & resources will be available online

How/Where to Begin

Date & Yukimura (Sengoku Basara)
Nendoroids

Gilgamesh/Archer
(Fate/Zero) Chogokin

- Talk to friends!
 - That's how I got started
- Get figures from series you like
 - Easier to curtail your spending habits if you have specific characters you want to buy
 - However, kami-sama forbid if you like OP, Type-Moon, Vocaloid, or Queen's Blade
 - THEY WILL BREAK YOU ☹
- Browse around an import site
 - AmiAmi, HLJ, or Hobby Search
 - Follow their FB page
- At first, would stick to import specific sites
 - Amazon & eBay present more pitfalls than anything else

Other Beginner Tips

- The bigger the figure, the more it costs
 - Isn't always necessarily true for the opposite
- On eBay: if everywhere else has a 1/7 or 1/8 scale figure listed as being ~$120 & this China based seller has it listed for $60 + free shipping, it's a bootleg
 - Amazon has this issue too
- For pre-orders, stick to import sites
 - Don't get a "pre-order" item from eBay
 - Still have to pay that $$$ upfront

Con't

- On import sites, usually have month/year figure will come out
 - Figures don't always come out in that month
- Waiting out won't necessarily get you a better price on a figure
 - Worst case, they sell out & they don't make a new batch
 - Any remaining figures are super expensive
- Pre-ordering can get you the cheaper price
 - But not always...Gilgamesh >.>

- Nendoroids & Revoltechs can be good start-up figures since they typically are cheaper than the other product lines

Currency

- Currency
 - Move decimal point 2 places to the left (give approx. value in US $)
 - ¥4500 = ~$45.00
- Due to constantly fluctuating currency markets, item price can also fluctuate
 - So delaying paying for an item will affect how much you pay in the end for better/worse

Where to Buy

Import Specific Sites

- Hobby Link Japan
- Hobby Search
- AmiAmi
- Big Bad Toy Store
- Toy Arena
- Play-Asia
- Rakuten: Global Market
 - Buncha others but you only need 2-3 sites

What I Use

- As far as import specific sites
 - Hobby Link Japan
 - Hobby Search
 - AmiAmi

Pro & Cons

- For the sites I frequent the most...
 - AmiAmi
 - Pros
 - Cons
 - Hobby Link Japan
 - Pros
 - Cons
 - Hobby Search
 - Pros
 - Cons

In General...

- All sites have their pros, cons, & exclusive items, so it helps to have several that you frequent

Buying American

- To cut down on shipping costs
 - Also, shipping time
- Places that sell figures
 - Anime Stuff Store
 - Anime Wild
 - Image Anime
- Usually can find Image Anime & Anime Stuff Store @ conventions
- Ultimately, makes it easier to return items
 - Granted, you lose out on preordering

Amazon & eBay

- Can give you far better prices than any import site
 - If not a preorder, get most
- Guaranteed shipping costs upfront
- Better systems to deal with any possible issues
 - More or less
- Can find hard-to-get figures for not that much
- Can make it easier to network sellers to get certain hard-to-find figures for you
 - ebay
- Don't have to worry about fluctuating currency markets

In General...

For both:

- Read the entire listing
 - The listing description, info. on the seller, seller rating, percentile of positive feedback, how much feedback they have, where they are located/shipping from, return policy (restocking fees/how long do you have to return it), everything
- Do this especially for eBay since it's the worse for having bootlegs
 - Amazon's better but they still have the same problem

- Pictures help
 - If you have a growing suspicion, pics of the box it shipped in, the item box, & the item itself
 - Makes for a stronger case if things escalate to that point
- While both eBay & Amazon can yield better prices, have to be way more vigilant than buying on HLJ, Hobby Search, AmiAmi, etc.
 - Why I recommend starting with an import site first

Product Lines, Makers, Sculptors, Oh My

Date & Yukimura (Sengoku Basara)
Nendoroids

Rin Tohsaka
(Fate/Stay Night)
1/8 Good Smile
Company PVC

Gilgamesh/Archer
(Fate/Zero) Chogokin

Examples of Each

- Product Line
 - Brave-Act, Figma, S.H. Figuarts, Revoltech Yamaguchi, Real Action Heroes, Movie Masterpiece, Nendoroid, Beach Queens, Ultra Detail Figure, etc.
- Maker/Manufacturer
 - Sentinel, MegaHouse, Bandai, Kaiyodo, FREEing, WAVE, Square-Enix, Banpresto, AmiAmi, Good Smile Racing, Gift, MAX Factory, Medicom Toy, etc.
- Sculptor
 - Koei Matsumoto, PULCHRA, Yuuki Ishiyama, Takayuki Shiragami, Touru Saegusa, Hajime Kouzuki, etc.

*Not the only ones

- Usually, the product line can help you attain a general idea of the price range
 - Can give you a better general price range more so than anything else
- Of course, still ultimately a crapshoot depending on supply & demand

Average Price Range

For product lines:

- Higher end
 - Real Action Heroes, Movie Masterpiece
- ‘Gray Area’/Craspsshoot/Middle Ground
 - Beach Queens, *BRAVE-ACT
- Lower end ($50 & under)
 - Revoltech Yamaguchi, Nendoroid, S.H. Figuarts, Figma, Ultra Detail Figure
- Again, nothing’s set in stone, just on average

- Seriously, sometimes it's a total crapshoot with product lines & their prices

- Figma:
- Cost $112.23

Clearly not my photography
>.>

- Figma:
 - Cost $38.38

- Again, it's a matter of supply & demand

Tracking

- Track yo' shiz!
- For smartphones
 - Android
 - Package Buddy
 - iPhone
 - Slice by lifehacker
- Let's you know if they misdelivered the item, item being retained, being held by the post office, etc.
- Honestly, makes it easier to have a case against a seller on eBay when they don't included shipping

Shipping in General

- Usually, shipping for any of the import sites I frequent is around $15-35
 - Of course, depends on how much is being shipped & the weight
- EMS & FedEx take the least amount of time whereas SAL can take 2+ weeks
- Oftentimes, things can take long to ship, namely for SAL
 - EMS & FedEx, you can order Monday & have the item(s) by the end of the week

- When in doubt, contact customer support
- With import sites, won't know how much shipping's going to be until after the fact
 - Already made the order

Displaying & Storing Figures

Shelving, Display Case, Book Case, etc.

- Depending on your living situations, one can be far better than the others
 - I wouldn't do shelving for an apartment/renting
 - Display cases are good b/c they typically come with a light & will keep out the dust
 - Book cases are good b/c figures can help you fill in empty space
 - ...that is, assuming you don't also collect art books
- >.>

More On Displaying

- All of these things can be built by hand
 - In which case, Home Depot & Lowes are your friends
- Or can be bought relatively cheaply
 - If you don't mind the risk, can even try Craig's List
 - Ikea, Target, Wal-Mart, etc.
- Instead of these options, can also put things on various furnishings throughout your abode

Area Conditions

- Cool dry area
 - Or figures can “sweat”
- Not in direct sunlight
- Out of harm’s way
- Not in a super crowded/hard to access room
 - i.e., hoarders situation
- In a light traffic area
 - God forbid you have a lot of ppl. running in & out the room
 - Or thieving relatives, roommates, friends, etc.

- Q-tips
- Air blower lens cleaner
 - Available on Amazon for ~$7
- Be careful, b/c if you manhandle some figures they'll break just to spite you

2 Options

- Super glue
- Epoxy
- Depending on the material & thickness could try melting the pieces back together
 - & potentially ruin the figure even more

- Packing them up
 - Original box vs. regular packing box
- Keeping original box vs. throwing it away
- Why you might want to curtail how much you buy
 - Moving is a nightmare, fragile things make it infinitely worse X/
 - Why action pose 1/7 scale & bigger type figures can be a pain in the butt
 - & Gundams ~.~

Why these are going to be a pain in the arse to move

- Figure collecting blogs
 - Collection DX
 - My Figure Collection
 - Neko Magic
 - Etc.
- Always can subscribe to the newsletter of sites you frequent
 - HLJ, Hobby Search, AmiAmi, Play-Asia, etc.
- Ultimately, the Tokyo Wonder Festival showcases all the newest figures & ones to come
 - The best source for finding out the latest figure

- Sites like AmiAmi & Hobby Link have regular blogs & videos regularly going over the latest figure collecting news
- Also check out reviews of figures

GUNDAMS! (& ZOIDS)

I had more but >.>

Ones Stolen/Thrown Away

Specific Sites to Buy

- GundamPlanet.com
- GundamStoreandMore.com
- Hobbywave.com
- Of course...
 - Amazon.com
 - Ebay.com

- Can usually get Zoids (& any other mecha) from the same places
 - But their ballz expensive no matter where you go X/
 - When in doubt, Amazon
- Also can buy light stands, detailers, parts, etc. from the same sites

In General...

- Can be better to buy from Gundam/mecha specific sites
 - Will offer items specifically for these products (extra parts, etc.)
- These sites are plentiful besides just import sites
- If you're only interested in Gundams, makes it easier to stay up-to-date with them
 - Have a site you like, subscribe to their newsletter

Pro Tips

Date & Yukimura (Sengoku Basara)
Nendoroids

Rin Tohsaka
(Fate/Stay Night)
1/8 Good Smile
Company PVC

Gilgamesh/Archer
(Fate/Zero) Chogokin

- Always research about a figurine before you buy it
 - So you know what it looks like & you don't wind up unknowingly buying a bootleg
- Don't waste your time in the Dealer's Room at cons
 - Overpriced or bootleg, take your pick
 - Think of it this way: no refunds & if the item's fake & you realize it post-con, tough st
 - Or you can get their business card & buy from them later
- If you do venture to buy a figure from the DR, & it is a bootleg (mofo told ya' so -_-)
 - Report it to con security & try to get your $$$ back from the dealer

- If you live on campus, have it shipped to your permanent address
 - Especially if you don't trust your roommates/living situation ~.~
- If you're buying from a site for the first time, make sure it at least offers Paypal as an option
 - Better than no protection at all
 - Internet condoms XD

- On eBay, ~~don't~~ never buy from China based sellers
 - Their idea of shipping something is to put a trash bag inside another trash bag & slap a shipping label on it (trash-ception) or it's a bootleg, take your pick
- Usually costs more to ship it back than it did to buy it in the case of returning it
- Depending on your situation, invest in a PO Box
 - Granted, not every site delivers to a PO Box

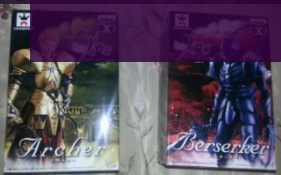

8 CODAL 1

- Seller told me after the fact that the item was most likely going to arrive broken }-|
 - Freakin' lessons learned...
 - Only minor scratches in the paint job & a broken hair piece, but you don't drop $140+ to have problems

Ultimate Madoka 1/7

- If you can't get the item, getting your $$$ back is just as good
- If you're struggling to find space to display figures, STAHP
 - God forbid if you have a slip/fall incident in a room like this:

- Keep yo' st together, there really is no street cred for having way too many figures than what you can handle
- On a similar note, living beyond your means

- Release date
- Series/characters
- Item code
- Buying used
 - AmiAmi sells used figures
 - Can get some off eBay
- Big figures vs. smaller figures
 - More detail vs. easier to fit in places
- Figure poses
 - Action, standing/sitting, etc.
- Etsy & Artist's Alley figures
- Proxy buying

- Shipping issues

- Damaged in shipping, taking forever to deliver, missed it's scheduled delivery date, etc.

- The item being damaged

- Either during shipping, appears mishandled, or you're just a klutz

- Keeping the original box vs. throwing it away

- Bootleg item
 - Contact seller, open a case, try to get a full refund, potentially need to contact your bank, etc.
 - Always contact the seller first
- Don't buy from China...but you can buy from Hong Kong(?)
 - This amuses me to no end
- Sometimes figures are just poorly made
